My watercolors and approach to painting are constantly evolving. I truly enjoy the beautiful way the pigments mingle and interact on the crisp white paper. My work has won awards at various venues and I participate in numerous solo, group, juried and invitational shows on a yearly basis. My favorite subject matter continues to be those ever colorful and varied flowers. They take well to the medium and allow me to stretch my palette to its fullest capacity. I strive to capture a bloom's "essence", not its exact reproduction. The reason I enjoy painting all those blossoms stems from my childhood in the Netherlands observing all that color while driving by field after field of blooms on the way to my grandmother's house. Recently my subject matter has expanded to include the figure and portraits. I currently teach watercolor workshops across the state and beyond. My paintings have been reproduced in the Splash series of books, accepted for exhibition at the Shanghai Biennial and were considered for the World Watercolor Competition's third round of finalists. My work is in private and corporate collections across the globe.
