

Nancy M. Daly

Nan Daly grew up climbing trees in a city bordering the Hudson River and the Catskill Mountains of New York State. These memories provide much of the imagery of her abstract paintings. She also enjoys painting the fragile beauty of flowers, especially since it provides an antidote to the New England winters.

Nan has an MA in English and taught high school English and Drama before becoming a serious painter. She has exhibited at the Duxbury Art Museum, the Zullo Gallery, the Main Street Gallery in Scituate, the New Art Center, the Natick Center for the Arts, the Attleboro Art Museum, and the WGBH Juried Fine Art Auction. She is a member of the Needham Art Association, the Dedham Art Association, the Wellesley Society of Artists, and Needham Open Studios, and is a signature member of the New England Watercolor Society and of the Rhode Island Watercolor Society.
