I am a lover of landscapes, and natural landscapes provide me with an endless supply of intriguing features. Watercolor has always been my medium of choice.

I have been painting watercolors since my youth, at first mostly western landscapes and upon my move to New England, eastern landscapes and waterscapes.

The waterscapes come about because as an avid fly fisherman I spend countless days on the water and am mesmerized by ever changing reflections and the patterns created by wind and water currents.

My paintings have been exhibited in the New England Watercolor Society's shows:
15th North American Open Show 2016
Regional show 2015 (Second Prize)
14th Biennial Open 2014
Regional Show 2013.

My work has been exhibited in a one-man show in the Betty Meyer Gallery at the United Parish of Auburndale in 2012 and is also in many private collections.
